I wish all donations I have made to the Royal Society of Literature to be treated as Gift Aid donations, so that the Society can reclaim tax on them. I am a UK tax payer, and expect to pay at least as much income tax or capital gains tax as the Society will reclaim on my donations.

About the Royal Society of Literature

Founded by George IV to ‘reward literary merit and excite literary talent’, the RSL has played a central role in British culture for nearly 200 years. Coleridge was a founding Fellow and from his day on, the Fellowship has embraced most of the greatest writers working in the English language. In addition to our regular events programme, the RSL encourages writers at all stages through prizes, awards, Masterclasses and workshops for schoolchildren, and campaigns on issues affecting readers and writers.

Why should I join the RSL?

Joining the Royal Society of Literature offers you an unparalleled opportunity to engage with the latest developments and debates in the world of books, and to meet the writers behind them.

In addition to our monthly talks at Somerset House we hold regular collaborative events with organisations such as King’s College London, the LSE, the Royal Society, Poet in the City, and the European Commission. Recent speakers have included: Margaret Atwood on the environment, David Hare on documentary and fiction, Seamus Heaney on a lifetime in poetry, Ian McEwan on originality and Marilynne Robinson on her life and work.

Forthcoming spring 2012 highlights include:

- Karen Armstong on “What is religion?”
- Susannah Clapp, Caryl Phillips and Bidisha on Angela Carter
- David Harsent and Lavinia Greenlaw on being a poet
- Hilary Mantel on her life and work
- John Carey and Claire Tomalin on Charles Dickens
- Rose Tremain on the sequel to Restoration
- Richard Davenport-Hines and Frances Wilson on the Titanic
- Rowan Williams on literature and leadership
