I wish all donations I have made to the Royal Society of Literature to be treated as Gift Aid donations, so that the Society can reclaim tax on them. I am a UK tax payer, and expect to pay at least as much income tax or capital gains tax as the Society will reclaim on my donations.

Why should I join the Royal Society of Literature?

Joining the Royal Society of Literature offers you an unparalleled opportunity to engage with the latest developments and debates in the world of books, and to meet the writers behind them.

In addition to our monthly talks at Somerset House we hold regular collaborative events with organisations such as the Arvon Foundation, the Royal Society, Poet in the City, and the European Cultural Commission. Recent and forthcoming highlights include:

- Seamus Heaney reading from his work and discussing a lifetime in poetry
- Hilary Mantel's master class on the art of historical fiction
- A.S. Byatt on the nature of love
- Iain Sinclair on "the habit of Hackney"

Founded by George IV to 'reward literary merit and excite literary talent', the RSL has played a central role in British culture for nearly 200 years. Coleridge was a founding Fellow and, since then, the Fellowship has embraced most of the greatest writers working in the English language.

Through prizes, awards, master classes and workshops for schoolchildren, the RSL encourages writers at all stages, and campaigns on issues affecting readers and writers.
